Thorn says he loved Mrs. Nack well enough to die for her, and kept on loving her even after he helped her carve and saw up the body of their victim, until she peached on him and said he did it. He'd see her hanged or electrocuted now before he would die for her. But they are both guilty by their own confession, and both ought to be shocked out together for their shocking crime.

The Galveston News, gold Democrat, doesn't approve of the New York Sun's greenback capers, and remarks that very few greenbacks are in circulation because the gold manipulators gobble them up and hold them, which contracts the currency. But if there were no gold redemption there would be no gobbling of greenbacks and no contraction from that cause.

It is estimated that since gold was discovered in California in 1848 that State has produced more than $800,000,000 worth of the yellow metal. And yet with all that, and with all that has been produced in other States, there isn't $500,000,000 in coin in the country. And we have imported gold, too. Where is it?

A Canton, N. Y., young man is suing his girl for $5,000 damages because she kicked him and refused to be his'n after she had consented. She owns, he says, a good farm and has $5,000 in bank. He seems to be after her bank account, and will compromise on that, leaving her the patch of dirt.

Burglars Enter the Store of Mr. R. E. Ward.

Mr. R. E. Ward's store, Market between Second and Third streets, was entered by burglars on night before last. Entrance was gained by breaking a pane in the door, making an aperture large enough for a man to squeeze through. The only thing missed was a few cents from the money drawer. How many apples, bananas, etc., were stolen Mr. Ward could not tell, but there were not enough taken to be missed.

PAID FIRE DEPARTMENT

Put in Operation Yesterday—Chief Haney of Atlanta in Charge—Hook and Ladder Truck Remodelled.

Wilmington's paid fire department is now in operation. Yesterday morning at 6 o'clock the firemen reported at the different engine houses assigned them and went on duty. Chief Haney, of Atlanta, and Chief Schnibben visited the engine houses, and the former made a short instructive talk to each company of firemen. The firemen have an hour off duty for each meal, but at different times. They sleep in the second story of the houses. A watch is kept at the houses all night, one of the men watching from 9 o'clock at night until 1 o'clock in the morning, when he is relieved by another fireman, who watches until 5 o'clock, at which time all the firemen are compelled to arise.

All yesterday Chief Haney was a busy man, but that has been the case with him ever since he has been here. When conversing with Chief Haney you are at once impressed with the fact that he (Haney) is a thoroughly efficient fireman and a clever gentleman, and a man that makes friends wherever he goes.

The Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution several days ago said:

Assistant Chief Haney, who left last night, is one of the oldest and most experienced firemen in the employ of the city. He has been in the department since its organization and has watched its growth and contributed to its efficiency. The fact that he holds the responsible position of assistant chief is evidence of his ability to train a department.

The request of Wilmington that an Atlanta fireman be sent there to train the new department is a compliment which is highly appreciated by Atlanta and by Chief Joyner for the department.

Chief Schnibben leaves for Atlanta this afternoon at 3 30 o'clock via the Seaboard Air Line.

Mr. Wm. Runge, elected as a fireman of the Atlantic Company, resigned and Mr. T. M. Trent of the Hook and Ladder Company, was put in his place, and Mr. J. Wannamaker elected to succeed Mr. Trent. The remodelling of the truck of the Wilmington Hook and Ladder Company will be completed to-day. The wheel by which the truck was formerly steered, and which required the entire attention of one man, has been done away with, and other improvements made have lessened the weight of the truck seventy-five pounds.

POLICEMAN FIRED UPON.

Narrow Escape of Sergeant Hewlett and Officer Kuhl.

Last night about 11 o'clock a squad of police officers, Sergeant L A. Hewlett and Policemen H. R. Kuhl and Joseph Sharp (colored), were fired upon by some one. At the usual time last night Sergeant Hewlett commenced to make his rounds, and at 10.45 o'clock met officers Kuhl and Sharp at the Southeast corner of Sixth and Nixon streets, where the grocery store of Mr. H. R. Kuhl, Jr., was burned last Monday morning. Sergeant Hewlett was standing talking to the two other officers when, about a square off, near the corner of Sixth and Swann streets, the flash of a pistol was seen, a report, and then a bullet sped by the group of officers, touching Sergeant Hewlett on the left shoulder blade and glancing by the officer's shield worn by policeman Kuhl. At the point where the flash of the pistol was seen the form of a man was discerned, and the officers at once ran there, and found a colored boy, Ed. Tucker, about seventeen years old, standing at the corner of Sixth and Swann streets. Tucker was arrested and placed in the guard house. He denied that he shot the pistol or that he knew who did the shooting, and stated that he worked at Fort Caswell. No pistol was found on his person. It was certainly a narrow escape for the policemen. Sergeant Hewlett's shoulder, where the ball touched in its flight, bears the print of the bullet.

The Morning Star.

By WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY MORNING, DEC. 2, 1897

NOT ALTOGETHER IN ACCORD.

For some time there has been much speculation as to the attitude the President would assume on the currency question in his message to Congress. It has been represented that he was in accord with Secretary Gage, and that while there might be some suggestions of his own he would substantially endorse Secretary Gage's plan, which embraced the retiring of the greenbacks and the Treasury notes and the refunding of the Government bonds by issuing in their place 2½ per cent. gold bonds. To retire the Government notes as he recommends would require the issuing of gold bonds to get the gold to do this.

We have never believed Mr. McKinley would do this, and never believed that Congress would favor such measures if he did. But there are others who are in a position to see and hear things who take the same view of it, and the nearer the time approaches for the delivery of his message the more positive they are that while he may indulge in more or less glittering generalities, and profess more or less interest in currency reform, he will touch the question in a very gingerly way, make few definite recommendations and leave the matter with Congress to wrestle with, and that means to leave it practically where it is.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger is a very cautious writer and is generally very accurate in statements that he makes. Referring to the views of Secretary Gage, he writes:

"While it is probable the President, in the privacy of the council chamber, concurs with the Secretary of the Treasury as to the correctness of his views and the efficacy of his proposed remedy, the President will not adopt the views and propositions of the Secretary in his message to Congress. President McKinley is one of those statesmen who keeps his ear close to the ground to catch every zephyr of public sentiment. Among what Mr. Lincoln called 'the common people' there remains a strong prejudice in favor of the greenback, and advocates of false theories of finance utilize this prejudice to array the people against the issue of bonds to take up the demand liabilities of the Government in the form of United States notes and Treasury notes, both of which are payable on demand in gold. The President will not run against this prejudice by advocating the redemption and permanent retirement of these demand gold liabilities, but, it is understood, will compromise with himself by recommending legislation directed to providing that when greenbacks and Treasury notes are presented for redemption in gold they shall be set aside and not again reissued except in exchange for gold coin. The President believes that by such legislation the greenbacks and Treasury notes would be preserved for use in business, and that attempts to deplete the Treasury gold for exportation or other purposes, outside of legitimate business, would be prevented."

The report became current some time ago, coming from persons who were represented to be close to the President, that he would fall back on some such compromise as is herein stated, but there is as little probability of Congress acting favorably on such a recommendation as there is of its passing a bill to adopt Secretary Gage's currency plan. When that thing is undertaken—that is, the repeal of the act of 1878—requiring, not simply authorizing, but requiring the reissuing of the greenbacks taken in by the Treasury either by redemption or in any other way—there will be a tussle that will make things quite warm in the halls of the Solons. It can't be done without repealing the law under which the greenbacks are and must be reissued, and the repeal of that law under present conditions is simply one of the things impracticable.

There may be some statesmen in Congress, but there are a great many politicians, men who like to be where they are and haven't the slightest inclination to commit political suicide and be laid away in the charnel house, and that's what the majority of them believe would be their fate if they favored any measure directly or indirectly to retire the Government notes. President McKinley is more of a politician than a statesman and, to quote from the Ledger's correspondent, "keeps his ear close to the ground" and a good deal closer since the shake up his party got in the recent elections. He hasn't the slightest intention of antagonizing the masses however much he may like to in accord with his Secretary of the Treasury, or comply with the wishes of the "currency reforms" whom Mr. Gage represents. As a politician he will still play the bimetallic fake notwithstanding the failure of his bimetallic commission to effect anything in Europe—outside of France—but even in this he will proceed in a very noncommittal way, being content if he can make the people believe that he and his associates are going to continue their efforts to effect what the monetary commission failed in doing. The course which he will probably pursue in reference to this is foreshadowed by the following taken from the letter from which we have quoted:

"It is also very probable he will have something encouraging for the advocates of bimetallism, and that he will hold out the hope that, through the efforts of the United States, the leading commercial nations may yet be induced to adopt an international use of silver on a parity with gold. In so far as the President may not agree with the report of the Secretary of the Treasury touching the recommendations of the latter for currency reform, nothing will be said in the Message, so that there will be no apparent disagreement between the President and the Secretary. The latter is directed by law to report to Congress, and, while the Secretary of the Treasury, as a rule, consults the President about the views and recommendations to be presented to Congress, his report may contain matter with which the President does not entirely agree, and which fact may be stated in the message without furnishing cause for offence to the Secretary. There can be no doubt, however, that all matter will be carefully omitted from each of these State papers which might furnish a suspicion that there was any difference of opinion between the two high officials touching the proper remedy to be applied to a very generally admitted evil."

He will play to the silver men—the bimetallists—but will do so in a way not to conflict radically with the Secretary of the Treasury, who as a banker has views that Mr. McKinley as a politician would not deem it entirely safe to endorse and recommend. Mr. Gage is playing the business end of it, while Mr. McKinley, who is looking out for the party and for his own chances in 1900, is playing the political end. They seem to understand each other pretty well, and it is understood that each will take his own views, leaving room enough between them to avoid collision.

Viewing the situation and horoscoping the prospects for currency reform, Major Carson, the Ledger correspondent, says:

"The outlook for the passage of any remedial measure is far from encouraging. In the Senate the silver men are in the majority, and will permit no measure to pass which provides for the retirement of the greenbacks, the curtailment of their present functions, or the issue of any bonds for any purpose whatever. In the House there is a majority favorable to sound money theories, and desirous of doing something in the direction of providing a remedy for the existing currency evils. But affirmative action will be endangered, and perhaps frustrated, by the multiplicity of council that will prevail. The Banking and Currency Committee is composed of strong men, but unfortunately many of them have pet ideas to which they adhere with the greatest pertinacity, and refuse to admit that the propositions of others contain any virtue. There were introduced at the special session of the present Congress no less than twenty-three bills that were referred to the Banking and Currency committee, and of these Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, the chairman of the committee, is the author of four. Messrs. Brosius, of Pennsylvania; Fowler, of New Jersey, and Hill, of Connecticut, of the committee, all strong men, also have bills pending for currency legislation."

The sum and substance of all this is they would like to do something but don't know how to go about it. They would like to please the gold men, but fear they can't do that without incurring the resentment of the people, who as a mass do not take any stock in the gold men's programme. They are simply between the devil and the deep sea, and not knowing which way to move will not move at all.

MINOR MENTION.

The land-grabbing game which has been so long and so successfully carried on in Africa by the leading European Governments, is cropping out in China, where under various pretexts some of those Governments are trying to get a foothold or strengthen the foothold they already have, and extend "the sphere of their influence." Great Britain, France and Russia already have a foothold, and recently Germany pounced upon and seized a port under pretence that it was in retaliation for the murder of some German missionaries, for which China had failed to make suitable reparation and atonement. Poor old China is unable to prevent this or protect herself, and simply blubbers and begs some other power to pull the intruder off. Following quickly the proceeding of Germany in seizing that port comes the report that Great Britain has secured from China further concessions of territory to enable her to construct fortifications the better to protect Hong Kong, which she squeezed out of China something over half a century ago. The apparent motive in this cession by China was to strengthen England as a check upon further aggressions by Germany, simply a bid for England's friendship, for England is interested in keeping Germany out of China where she has already felt the effect of German competition. But the game of grab which has begun will go on until that honey combed old Empire falls to pieces and most of it falls into the hands of the grabbers who have their eyes on the choice spots.

The Spanish Consul at Philadelphia, who has been in Cuba on business for his Government, reports that the terms of autonomy offered by Spain to Cuba have "produced an effect that cannot be improved upon." This is somewhat ambiguous and it isn't easy to tell just what is meant by it, but we suppose he means to say that his Government has solved the problem and is making a bee-line to success in pacifying the kickers over there. As Mr. Congosto holds a job under his Government it wouldn't be prudent in him, at this stage of the proceeding to admit that the autonomy plan was a failure, for in that event he might lose his job, but he evidently didn't have the authority of the Cubans for even the ambiguous statement he makes for the gentlemen who speak for them in the council and on the field have unequivocally and emphatically declared to the world that they don't want any of that kind of thing, and are going to fight it out on their own lines to get what they do want, if it takes several summers, and they are doubtless in a better position to speak on this question than Mr. Congosto, who didn't meet any of them during his official sojourn in Cuba. The fact is the Cubans know too well what Spanish promises mean, and have been victimized so much that they have not a scintilla of confidence in anything that the Spanish Government might say. They were never nearer independence than now, and it would be folly and suicidal to accept anything less.

The Warrenton Gazette of last week notes the sale, under mortgage, in Warren county, of a plantation with a residence on it that cost $8,000, for $2,000. This plantation some time ago could not have been bought for $35,000. We do not know who the purchasers were, but they were probably the holders of the mortgage or mortgages. This is pretty low down, but it is not a rare case, for property put up at public sale, when it must be sold, generally goes at about the same proportion and sometimes even less. And this is not confined to any particular section of the State, and consequently cannot be attributed to poverty of the soil, or to local causes. It is general. The cause is found not in the poverty of the soil, but in the people, who have not the money to pay mortgages or to buy land at anything like a reasonable valuation or even at almost nominal valuation. Some time ago we noted the organization of a syndicate which was said to be composed of outside capitalists with, perhaps, some home capitalists, the purpose of which was to buy up valuable lands sold under decree of court and for taxes. There is not a week that we do not see in our exchanges notices of the sale of lands at almost incredibly low figures, some of them farms which not many years ago sold for five times as much or more. This reads like a pessimistic cry, but it is the ice-cold truth, all the same. And it is all the result of the crushing, vitality destroying monetary system which puts money up and everything else down. And we haven't seen the end of it yet, if there be no improvement in this system.

Diseases often lurk in the blood before they openly manifest themselves. Therefore keep the blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

CURRENT COMMENT

—— It is in vain to advise planters to "restrict the cotton acreage." It is always the other fellow who is expected to restrict.—Augusta Chronicle, Dem.

—— The silence of J. Sterling Morton may possibly be due to the fact that his exciting chase of the "fanatics, bigots, and idiots" of Nebraska has deprived him of the requisite amount of breath.—Washington Post, Ind.

—— American intervention in the Venezuelan boundry dispute seems destined to prove an excellent business stroke. Several important commercial concessions have already been secured from the Caracas Government by Citizens of the United States.—Baltimore Herald, Dem.

—— If the British and French troops have clashed in Africa it is a shame and a sheer waste of opportunity. There are still a number of good pieces of land which their troops might grab if they paid attention to business.—Chicago News, Ind.

—— "Atrocities continue," says The World's correspondent at Havana. And he proceeds to prove it by specific instances of unprovoked murder and violence, with names, dates and places. And atrocities will continue so long as the great crowning atrocity of ferocious Spain's presence in Cuba continues.—New York World, Dem.

—— It appears from the reports that the bullets and guns which the Afridis and other tribesmen on the Indian frontier have been using with such effectiveness against the British are of British manufacture. When your British tradesman starts out to sell bullets and guns he does not care much whom he sells them to, just the purchasers can pay his price.—Savanuah News, Dem.

Mrs. Henry Bruns, wife of the well known blacksmith at Grand Junction, Iowa, says: "I was troubled with sleeplessness, nervousness, headache and irregular menstruation; suffering untold misery for years. I used various advertised remedies for female complaints besides being under the care of local physicians, without help. I noticed in Dr. Miles' advertisement the testimonial of a lady cured of ailments similar to mine, and I shall never cease to thank that lady. The Tax on Beer.

There is much curiosity as to why the tax on beer was made $1.44 a barrel instead of $1.45 or $1.50. The rate adopted sounds a good deal as if the senate committee was imitating the bargain counters in the department stores, but there is a deep and important significance to the figures. They were adopted for the sake of convenience in mathematical calculations. One hundred and forty-four is the multiple of 2, 3, 4, 6, 8 and 12, which are the divisions used by the brewers in the sale of beer. In estimating and computing the taxes upon fractional parts of a barrel $1.44 is much more convenient than $1.50 or $1.40 or $1.45. Thus the tax on half a barrel of beer will be 72 cents, the tax on a quarter of a barrel 36 cents, on a third of a barrel 48 cents, on a sixth of a barrel 24 cents, on an eighth of a barrel 18 cents. Even cents and no fractions enter into the calculation.—Chicago Record.

The Surprise of All.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half a dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at R. R. BELLAMY'S drug store. †

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Raleigh Times: Deputy Collector J. J. Daniel and Clerk Walker, of the Internal Revenue Department, made one of the most successful raids of the season last (Sunday) night at Ringwood, near Littleton. Three large stills, practically new, were captured, in addition to 3,000 gallons of beer and other material. The stills were operated by one person.

— Goldsboro Argus: There has been more Fall plowing done in Wayne county in the last few weeks than ever before in one season. Many of the farmers have put in good crops of wheat and oats, and others are turning the ground over for next year's crop. Our farmers are working harder, going in debt less, and getting more independent every year.

— Salisbury Sun: Mr. J. B. Kincaid, a good farmer of this county, has quite a singular pig. He tells us he has had the pig in a pen for three weeks, that there is an open door two feet wide to the pen and that the pig has never come out. A 500 pound hog could pass through the door and the pig could easily come out of it chose, but it has not done so. The pig is about three months old.

— Winston Journal: A few days since Peter Price, of Greensboro, and Joe Vaughn, bartered on a piece of land at Madison, which they owned in copartnership. Mr. Price proposed to buy or sell at Mr. Vaughn's figures. Mr. Vaughn set the price at $2,500, and Mr. Price made the purchase. A day or two later, while having an old cabin removed, a rich find was made. An old half-gallon pot was found containing $5,000 in gold. The gold is supposed to have been stored there by an old man by the name of Black, who had led a miserly or recluse life.

— Greenville Reflector: At Hobgood Saturday night a crowd of drunken negroes in Bell & Sims' bar got into a row and had a general cutting and shooting match. Several were cut and one negro named Lawrence Howell was killed by Reuben Smith. The latter was arrested and sent to Halifax jail. —— On Sunday morning Mr. D. S. Spain, who lives in the Dancy house, on Pitt street, found a handsome finger ring in his garden. It was found where chickens had just been scratching, the fowls having uncovered it. Mr. Spain began making inquiry for an owner and the ring proved to be one that Mrs. M. M. Nelson lost twelve years ago at the time her mother occupied the premises.

— Charlotte News: Mattie Johnston, the crazy woman that the News spoke of yesterday, terrified the police yesterday afternoon and last night. After she was arrested she was placed in the tombs, and it was not very long before she began barking like a dog. She was such a good imitator that the people around the station house thought that one of the canine tribe was confined in one of the cells. They went to liberate the supposed dog and found that it was not a dog at all, but the woman who was making the noise. A physician was called to see the woman and he was of the opinion that the unfortunate woman was suffering with hydrophobia. Those that know the woman, say that she was bitten by a dog in the early spring that gave evidences of being mad at the time. Nothing, however, was thought of this until the woman showed signs of being demented. She was this morning taken to the county home, where she will be closely guarded.

TWINKLINGS.

— The First Question—"Theosophists say that evolution is divided into cycles."

"What make?"—Judge.

— Modern Definitions—Son—"Paw, what's meant by a horse of another color?"

Wheeler—"A bicle of another make."

Son—"And what's a dark horse, paw?"

— A Reason: Druggist—"I think we ought to sell bicycles."

Assistant—"Why?"

Druggist—"Nearly all the doctors prescribe them."—Puck

— Change of sentiment.—When the bicycle first appeared in India the natives fell down and worshipped it. Now it has come into general use, and they fall down and cuss it.—Wichita Eagle

— Boston Lady (at the seance)—"Is that my son Chesterfield?"

Spirit Form—"It is he."

Boston Lady (with a shriek—"O Chesterfield! Didn't I tell you before you died not to associate with any but Boston spirits? Where did you ever pick up such grammar as that?"—Judge.

— Lies, All Lies—Eagerly—"And these stories about the fabulous wealth of Klondike—are they exaggerations?"

Klondike Liar—"Believe me, yes. Why, you can travel two or three blocks without seeing gold, except a few nuggets here and there."

— "Opposition to knickerbockers," said the golden haired dreamer, "is simply evidence of narrowness of mind."

"Oh, not necessarily of mind," was the answer of the vision with the Titian locks and Junoesque proportions.—Indianapolis Journal.

— His Experience.—"Have you ever had any experience as a stage manager?' asked the theatre proprietor, who had advertised for such a person.

"Yes, sir, I have," replied the applicant. 'I drove the stage between Podunk and Persimmonville every day for seven years."—Louisville Courier Journal.

— The Qualification.—Her Father—"You have the nerve to ask me for my daughter, sir, the joy of my old age, the priceless jewel in my diadem?"

Her Adorer—"That's what—and I want the jewel and the diadem thrown in."

Her Father—"In that case you can have her. I'm looking for a man with nerve for her."—Yellow Book.

An Ideal Spelling Course.

First, as to oral and written column and sentence spelling I shall say only this, that the wise teacher will acquaint herself with as many methods and devices as possible and change from one to the other, in order to relieve the tedium and to meet the needs of individual children.

Before all she will beware of running off at a tangent with any particular method, because none yet discovered has proved a panacea. Second, under no circumstances should more than 15 minutes daily be devoted to the subject. Whatever benefit the pupils receive from their instruction in spelling will be obtained within this period. Third, I would recommend that the words be carefully graded, not only in regard to orthographical difficulties, but in accordance with the vocabulary of the child as well. In this way the course in spelling might become as systematic as in other subjects. Fourth, precedence should be given to common words, while technical and unusual words should be taught incidentally. By excluding words of the latter classes, the course would be materially abridged and the chances of producing good practical spellers proportionately increased. Fifth, the course should be further abridged by excluding words that contain no catch—that is, words which naturally spell themselves.

My researches on this point would indicate that more than half the common words belong to this category, and consequently need not be studied. The ideal ground to be covered in spelling would be represented, therefore, by a carefully graded list of the common words most liable to be misspelled. The number of words in this list, according to my estimate, would be between 6,000 and 7,000.—Dr. J. M. Rice in Forum.

Princeton's Famous Leads In Athletics.

It was a Princeton man who revised the Rugby rules of football and adapted them for American colleges—J. Potter of the class of '77. Andrew James McCosh, son of the illustrious President McCosh, was captain of the Princeton team that year. His team played the "association" style of game during most of the season, but relinquished it to adopt Potter's new mode of play. The intercollegiate world adopted it immediately, and the present game includes most of its features. Alexander Moffat, captain of the 1883 team, was Princeton's most famous kicker. Lamar made the most celebrated run, which plucked victory from defeat in the game against Yale in 1886.

The "curve" in pitching in baseball which has become universal as an essential feature, was invented and first applied in an amateur game in the fall of 1874, by J. M. Mann of Princeton, class of '76. The "wedge" in football, from which have developed all the mass plays now the subject of so much discussion, was invented by the Hodges of Princeton, who learned it from studying Cæsar's "Commentaries on the Gallic War," and the same men introduced the modern system of bringing the "backs" up close to the line. A Princeton man (Smock, '79) invented the canvas jacket.—James W. Alexander in Scribner's.

Indian Agriculturists.

The Indians on the Shoshone reservation have to the present time this season sown 125,000 pounds of grain, and it is expected they will sow as much more before the close of the planting season. The department is not giving the seed to the Indians this year as heretofore, but is loaning it, and expects the Indians to repay it when they harvest their crops. The pupils of the Indian school are farming extensively under the direction of the Indian agent, Captain Wilson, and the teachers of the school. They have put out 12,000 cabbage plants and have a model garden. A test will be made on the farm with sugar beet seed, the department having furnished a large quantity for experiment. Under the present management of Indian affairs the Indians of the Shoshone reservation are improving rapidly in condition, and the majority of the tribe will soon become self supporting. Great interest is being taken by the Indians in school work, and the agency school is having a very successful term.—Correspondence Omaha Bee.

THE SPERM WHALE.

Some Interesting Facts About This Monster of the Sea.

The common sperm whale, or cachalot, has a very wide geographical range; it is said that it inhabits all seas except those near the poles. It is much sought after because it furnishes us with spermaceti, ambergris and much fine oil.

As a rule, it is from 70 to 80 feet in length. Its head is immense, being equal to one-half of the entire bulk of the animal and more than one-third of its length. The right side of the head and nose is occupied by a cartilaginous, triangular shaped cavity, called by whalers the "case," which is the main receptacle for spermaceti. The "onso" is divided into compartments communicating with each other, and it often contains as much as ten large barrels of spermaceti.

Though the head is large and clumsy looking, it does not impede the whale's movements in the least, for it raises its head above the surface of the water when swimming and keeps it above when at rest.

It is not very well known of what use the spermaceti is to the whale, except that it gives buoyancy to the fore part of its body. Ambergris is a fragrant, waxy secretion. It is a gray substance and when heated or dissolved in alcohol gives out a peculiar, agreeable odor exceedingly diffusive. It also has the power of increasing the odor of other perfumes. Often it is found floating on the sea or lying on the sea coast and is valued at about $5 an ounce.

Sperm whales traverse the seas in herds called "schools" or "pods" by whalers. Five hundred or more have been seen in a single "school," following a leader, whose duty seems to be to keep a close lookout for danger; in case of threatened harm he sounds an alarm by a peculiar roar.—Philadelphia Times.

There seems to be no garment or other article of wearing apparel pertaining to woman on which a miniature may not be appropriately used as a garnitnre.

LYING PHOTOGRAPHS.

The Deceptions That Can Be Manipulated Through the Camera.

We have several times commented on the falsity of the prevalent idea that a photograph must be absolutely true to nature, at least in the proportions of the objects represented. The author of a series of articles on "The Magic and Mystery of Photography," in The American Journal of Photography, gives additional proof. He says: "It is said photography cannot lie, although it is an easy matter to secure a photograph which is far from the truth and the reality. This is done by what is called 'straining the lens,' resulting either in a caricature or in exaggerated perspective. A caricature is easily made by bringing one part of a subject nearer the camera than the remainder, thus giving a false proportion. Some of these are distinctly ludicrous. For example, when taking a portrait, the hands or feet, being nearer the camera than the body, come out abnormally large. A person lying at full length on the grass and photographed either from the head or feet will find the picture results in a gross caricature. There was a comical drawing in one of the illustrated papers recently, showing two sailors taken on board ship, who, owing to a lurch of the ship at the moment of exposure, were represented as monstrosities having long legs and small bodies. Animals will also appear laughable if the camera is placed so as to represent them in perspective.

"A row of six or seven cottages can be made to appear in the photograph like a street half a mile long by fixing the camera close to the subject, and using a lens having a focal length very near the size of the plate. Owing to the difference between the angle included by the lens and the angle of the eye apparent distortion will ensue. Another method of creating illusion is to photograph objects without any means of judging their real size; thus the model of a steam engine or other machinery only 6 or 7 inches high will, if taken on a plain ground, appear in the negative like a machine 7 or 8 feet high, with wheels 3 or 4 feet in diameter. Many photographs exhibited as taken from machines weighing several tons are from models only weighing pounds. It is curious to notice in this connection that a photograph from an actual working machine will look like a copy from a model, a complete reversal of the previous illusion. These illusions may be taken advantage of to flatter those who vary from the average."

AN ORDEAL.

Hearing that a poacher, Tom Clayper, whom I had known as a boy, was to be transported for life, I went to see him. Tom recognized me at once and held out his hand. He was never ashamed of himself, which was one characteristic he had.

We talked over old times. I was capable of appreciating what merits Mr. Clayper possessed, now that I had seen more of the world, and he was certainly an extraordinary fellow. As I was still young enough to be pleased at hearing adventures and as Tom, now that his career seemed closed, was gratified in relating his, I had Tom's history before we parted. Its finale seems to have been this, for Tom was rather shy of speaking about certain matters, a peculiarity I have noticed in some of your rips: He had his feelings of delicacy where women are concerned. A rather pretty girl was in service at the squire's—Squire Pell, I think I told you. To her Tom paid court. He was richer in presents than in reputation.

I fancy the girl gave him reason to think she liked him. At all events she did not return his fineries. One evening Tom met the colonel in her company—somewhere about the grounds. Tom assured me that he passed them civilly, but the next time he came across the colonel he was surly and managed to insult him and then to speak his mind, which was none of the cleanest. The colonel, you must know, was engaged at the time to be married to Squire Pell's only daughter—money, but no beauty. So he let Tom get the best of him, but from that day, Tom says, he felt he had an enemy and knew who that enemy was.

"Wasn't he a coward to hunt a poor fellow like that in the dark?" said Tom to me and declared he knew the colonel was a coward and was determined to be revenged and satisfied of it.

One night the colonel was in bed and heard his door yield its lock and open.

You shall hear the rest in Tom's words: "I knew that man was a coward, sir; so, once in the house and sure of his room, I knew I had him. I knew the bearings of the bed. I watched how the light fell two or three nights before. The moment I opened the door I threw the light—carried a dark lantern—threw the light slap on his face. I saw him start. Did that man open his eyes? Deuce a bit. Slept as sound as tenpence. I laughed to myself. Why, if he had got up, it'd have been a fair struggle between us and nabbed I certainly should 'a' been. But deuce a bit did he stir. Colonel Badger, thinks I, I'll badger you. Well, I walked slow up to him, with the lantern in one hand and my pistol in the other, leveled at his head. There was he sleeping harder and harder. I couldn't quite see his heart beat, but I'll lay my life it galloped."

I will spare you Tom's oaths.

"Well, sir," he went on, "I'd half a mind at one moment to do for him outright. For a coward who's nothing better than a villain, what good's he for—to live? Close down to his forehead I put the muzzle of the pistol. It was tempting then. Just a hair, and he'd have had an extinguisher on his small candle. Lor, sir, his eyes were shut, but I'll wager he saw it all clear as day. And there was the perspiration a-burstin out of his forehead an rollin down his cheeks. I remember a large drop of perspiration on his nose. An he pretendin to sleep hard all the while! Why, the stoopid ass, did he think I didn't know that a chap never sweated in his sleep—leastways not natural sweat? Well, I kept at that, drawing the pistol away an putt-in of it close, for, I should think, 40 minutes or more, but I took no account. I was cruel glad, to be sure, and be perspiring harder an harder. Not a move right or left. I didn't speak. I thought to myself: 'Oh, you villain, I daresay you think yourself better than me, don't you? And if you had me in your power now, wouldn't you let loose? But I ain't such a coward as you. You shall bleed, my fine chap—in the pocket. That'll do.' For," said Tom to me, "I hadn't come there and run the risk only to frighten the colonel. Two birds at one blow was always my game.

"So by and by," Tom pursued, "when I thought I'd give my gentleman a pretty good sweat for the benefit of his health, I began to ransack. I knew the whereabouts of his desk and things. I collared the desk entire and made as if I'd walk away. He had a chance then. The cowardly beast! There he stuck. He'd have liked to snore, just to persuade me he was a-snoozin. And such a fellow as that to go misleadin of young women! Ain't it disgustin, sir?"

Tom was a bit of a moralist, you see.

Well, the end of it was that Tom, after giving the colonel another dose, made up his mind to quit the premises.

"And I went, sir," said Tom. "Got off scot free. I just spoke these words in a solemn voice: 'Colonel, whether you're asleep or whether you're awake, just you keep quiet the next quarter of an hour, or you're a dead man. I ain't goin yet, but my comrades are (I was all, all alone, sir; I never took a pal if I could help it, but I thought I'd tell him so, the coward), and I'll stop outside the door,' I says, 'till they're safe. So mind your eye,' I says, 'I'm in earnest.' And then I touched his forehead with the cold iron and moved back, pointin at him still, and his face shinin with the cold sweat. He won't forget that hour I give him in a hurry. I knew very well he'd sleep on, bless you, and so he did, and I never heard nothin till a month ago, when they pounced on me for it, and here I am, goin to see foreign lands, thanks to you, colonel. But you won't forget me; so don't try. And everybody's talkin of the story, for I outs with it at the trial, neck and crop. I told it all about his sweatin an pretendin to sleep. I saw the people laugh. I'll swear the judge enjoyed it, for all he looked that grave you'd think he was a owl. Ha, ha! Mr. Colonel! That's what I calls strikin as you fly. They'll call you a coward in old England, but they won't call me one in Van Diemen."

And with this consolation Mr. Tom Clayper departed on his voyage. You will admit that the colonel's night must have been sufficiently miserable.—New York News.

THAT LITTLE DINNER

HOW TO ARRANGE FOR AND SERVE A CHARMING MEAL.

Rules That Will Apply Whether the Dinner Is Expensive or Not—The Maid, Like the Magician's Assistant, Plays a Most Important Part.

That little dinner you would like to give is not such a formidable affair if you pay heed to certain essential points and see that your maid is well drilled before the occasion.

You would perhaps like to attempt a higher flight than the usual family dinner. Let us say, then—or rather, this may be taken as a suggestion—that the dinner consists of a soup, a fish, a roast, a salad, dessert and coffee. If a daintily pretty table is wanted, have an under tablecloth of canton flannel, a fine linen tablecloth, napkins, carving cloths, if you have them, but they are not essential. If your maid is untutored, you must personally attend to the laying of that table. See that the canton cloth is put on perfectly smooth and the linen cloth over it wrinkleless.

Place a daintily arranged bunch of flowers in the center of the table. If you have a handsome tall lamp, use that for the centerpiece. If you are the fortunate possessor of pretty candelabra, put one on each side of the flowers. If you use candlesticks, you need four, which must be placed in a square a little distance from the flowers. Lay a dinner plate for each person. On the right of this plate the maid must lay a soup spoon, a dinner knife, a knife for the fish. On the left she must place a fork for the fish and a larger one for the roast. There is a proper way in which to lay each of these articles. The bowl of the spoon should be upward, the sharp edges of the knives toward the plates and the tines of forks up. Those points are essential to good form. A tumbler for water is placed at the right of each plate and a napkin, holding a piece of bread, at the left.

See that all the things necessary for each course are ready and at hand. Place the dessert plates, with their spoons or forks, on the sideboard. On a side table have ready a tray with after dinner coffee cups and saucers and spoons with sugar bowl and cream jug. Have extra glasses, knives, forks and spoons ready at hand to meet emergencies that sometimes happen at the best regulated dinner.

Your tureen, dishes and plates must be warm. To neglect this point spoils a good dinner. The salad bowl and olive dishes must be cool. It is rather nice to have a couple of olive dishes and a couple of dishes of salted almonds. These are placed outside the candelabra. Just before dinner is announced tumblers and carafes should be filled and candles lit. The mistress who has not full confidence of the skill of her maid should carefully review her table after it is laid to make sure that no essential is missing. As to serving this meal, the maid should be instructed to place the soup tureen with the soup ladle at its right and warm soup plates at the head of table, after which she may announce that "dinner is served." The guests seated, the maid uncovers the tureen, placing the cover on the little side table. The mistress places a ladleful of soup in a plate and passes it to the maid, who receives it on her tray and, going to the right side of the persoon at the right of the mistress, places it before him on the cold dinner plate. Serve guests on one side of the table and then the other. The maid removes the tureen first, then a soup plate in each hand until all are removed. She should take the plates from the right of the guest. The platter of fish and warm fish plates are placed before the host, with fish knife and fork to right and left of platter.

In serving the first slice of fish the maid should place it before the hostess. This raises a mooted point. The guest of honor was usually the person first served, but in these days of innovations, when new dishes, strange table implements and novel methods of eating are so in vogue, it has been decided that it is best for the hostess to take the lead, so that there may be no danger of blunders by uninitiated guests.

The maid places the roast before the host, with the carving knife and fork and gravy spoon and hot plates. She serves the roast as she did the fish. She should then take a vegetable—say, potatoes—on her tray, with its spoon, and offer to each guest at his left. Each vegetable must be served in turn. The removal of this course requires carefulness. She should first take the carver and fork and gravy spoon on her tray and carry them from the room, then the platter and after that the plates, one in each hand. All crumbs are carefully brushed from the table.

She puts the salad fork and spoon in the salad bowl, which she places, with the salad plates, before the host. While he is helping the first plate she quickly puts a knife and fork at each place. When the salad is removed, the maid must also take away the salts and peppers, almonds, olives, etc., and the table again brushed of crumbs. The dessert, with its plates, is placed before the hostess, and the person at her right served first. This course removed, the maid places the coffee tray before the hostess and brings the coffeepot. When the coffee is poured, she serves it, beginning with the guest at the right, and offers cream and sugar, always at the person's left. If the carafes are filled and nothing else is needed, the maid may leave the room, and the hostess may give herself up to those delicious 15 minutes over the coffee which only come to a woman who has achieved that triumph of social art, a well prepared and well served dinner, whether it cost $5 or $50.—Philadelphia Press.

Fashion In House Lighting.

There is fashion in lights, as in every other feature of house furnishing, and fashions are rooted and grounded in common sense far oftener than we are in the habit of thinking, says The Ladies' Home Companion. A blaze of light is out of fashion and deserves to be, for it is as trying to the eyes as to the complexion and emphasizes worn and faded furnishings as well as hollows and wrinkles. Overhead lights are under the same ban, and with equally good and sufficient reasons. In short, chandeliers are out and brackets are in, lamps are the perfection of beauty and lighting power, and candlesticks handsomer and more popular than ever before. Side brackets with movable arms are in decided favor. Inexpensive ones are pretty. Any one can fasten them to the wall, and no style of light is so well adapted to different rooms and uses. They come in a wide range of sizes and all sorts of designs, with one plain gas jet fitted for a globe, and with as many as five jets that simulate candles on one branch and fitted for oil and candles. Those of wrought iron are highly effective when they accord with the style of a room. Placed each side of a dressing table or bureau, lamps on arms make an effective and convenient light for toilet purposes.

Fighting Fires In Winter Weather.

To stand upon the peak of a ladder at perhaps the third or fourth story of a building, directing the stream of water at the blazing interior while the thermometer is at about its lowest point, is not a comfortable task. Perhaps another stream is playing over your head, and you stand in an icy spray. Icicles hang from every point of your fire hat, and the rubber coat is frozen to your back, and the water that is falling about you freezes as fast as it falls. Every movement upon the ladder is fraught with danger; for it is so incrusted with ice that it is almost impossible to get a solid foothold, and a misstep would hurl you to the ground, 40 feet below.—Charles T. Hill in St. Nicholas.

Good Excuse.

The Lady—I'll give you a good meal if you will cut up some of that wood.

How to Stop a Hole In a Boat.

In the narrative of his journey to Burma Captain Gill, R. E., incidentally gives some scraps of information that may be found practically useful. In one of his stories he describes the way in which a leak was stopped in a junk which met with a mishap while sailing up the Yangtze river. The skipper of the boat was an old lady, a widow, whom the captain, with shocking lack of gallantry, designated Jezebel. Her force of lung and store of bad temper were such that none of the coolies or boatmen could withstand her, and it was only when ascending the rapids that she would for a time yield her command to the pilot.

On one occasion the junk ran aground and knocked a big hole in her side. Jezebel, looking at it with unconcern, remarked, between the whiffs of her pipe, "Cotton wool," by which she meant that the breach was to be repaired with that material. The coolies first put on a plaster of whity brown paper, mud and grains of rice. Over that they nailed a piece of wood and stuffed the interstices with cotton wool and bamboo shavings. The patch was, of course, put on inside. The operation was a long one, and extraordinary as this method of boat repairing may appear, it proved tolerably effectual, although from the amount of bailing that was always necessary afterward, one voyager suggested that the vessel should be called the Old Bailee.—Harper's Round Table.

Going to the Opera Underground.

A most interesting discovery has recently been made in Paris which recalls an act of Napoleon I. This is the subterranean passage which ran to the imperial box at the old Theatre Italien.

The reason for the building of this underground passage, which formed a feature of nearly all the subsidized theaters of Paris, was because of the attempts on the life of Napoleon in the Rue Nacaise when he was going to the opera.

By means of this tunnel it was possible for him to disappear from the house without any one being aware at the moment, while in the event of necessity troops could be introduced which would be able to dominate the audience should the necessity for such a contingency arise.—Pearson's Weekly.

CAR AND ENGINE EQUIPMENT.

Representatives of Railroads and Labor Organizations Before the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 1.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day opened the hearing of the railroads which have petitioned for an extension of the time in which they may comply with the law of 1893 requiring them to equip their cars and engines with automatic car couplers, hand-rails and air-brakes. The representatives or attorneys of several hundred railroads and also of leading labor organizations were present. John K. Cowen, one of the receivers of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, presented the general subject to the Commission. Previous to his general presentation Chairman Morrison, of the Commission, called for the oral argument of the roads which were completely equipped under the law, but which had now petitioned the Commission for an extension of the time as applied to the cars of other roads which had not complied. Samuel Hoar, representing the Boston & Albany railroad, made a brief argument on this point to show the utter paralysis of traffic which must follow if roads which had complied with the law were compelled to cease hauling unequipped cars. He further said it would require $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 for the railroads to comply with the law. This money must be earned. If the commission declined an extension, the roads would be absolutely unable to equip their cars out of their own resources and would have to take it out of wages.

P. H. Morrissey, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the Railroad Conductors' Association, the Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and the Association of Railroad Telegraphers, followed Mr. Cowen with a forcible presentation of the attitude of the railroad employes toward the solicited extension.

During the past five years, he said, 2,000 railroad men had been killed annually, and between 20,000 and 25,000 injured. Of these casualties, sixty per cent. were directly attributable to the two evils this law was designed to correct.

He replied rather heatedly to the intimation of wage reduction thrown out by Mr. Cowen. "I speak in no defiant spirit," said he, "but I want to say that when the question of a reduction in wages is presented to us, we will meet it. If the alternative of reducing wages or the maiming and death of its members were presented to the organizations which I represent, I do not hesitate to say that they would prefer to go out and equip the roads themselves."

The hearing to-day closed with a somewhat sensational exchange between Mr. Cowen and Mr. Morrisey. Mr. Cowen in closing, indignantly repudiated the idea that Mr. Gompers or Mr. Morrisey in any way represented the employes of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. He warned the commission against the humanitarian view urged by the labor leaders. He used irony in his references to Mr. Morrisey's assumption of authority. The latter jumped to his feet when Mr. Cowen sat down. He refused to be discredited, and he denied that he had assumed authority not vested in him. Eighty five per cent. of the employes of the Baltimore & Ohio, he said, were members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and at the Toronto convention last year he had unanimously been empowered to state the position of its members to the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Every division of the Baltimore & Ohio had been represented that convention. Upon that authority, he said, he denied Mr. Cowen's statement.

"I said the question of a year's extension had never been presented to the employes of the Baltimore & Ohio," interrupted Mr. Cowen, "and I repeat it."

"The Toronto convention," retorted Mr Morrissey, "voted against any extension." He then explained further that he had appealed to the convention not to tie his hands, but to leave him free to use his judgment, and that this discretion had been accorded him. Soon afterward the hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

FIRE IN ST. LOUIS.

Paper Factory and Other Buildings Burned—Loss Estimated at Over $200,000.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ST LOUIS December 1.—Fire broke out in the F. O. Sawyer Company's paper factory, on Locust, near Third street, at 3 30 o'clock this afternoon, and within an hour the establishment was in ruins and a number of adjoining buildings were badly damaged. The general loss is estimated at over $200 000. Just how the fire started is not known, the flames suddenly bursting from the building. It contained highly inflammable material and was soon a roaring furnace, the fire communicating across the street to the Economic bindery plant, the Young-McKinney Printing Company, the Missouri Engraving Company, Woodward-Tiernan Printing Company and Higgins' Map Printing Company. A general alarm had been turned in, but the net work of wires and the narrowness of Locust street at the spot prevented the firemen from getting actively at work at the seat of the fire. There were a hundred employes in the paper factory, but all made their escape in safety.

At 4 30 o'clock the walls of the paper factory fell, crushing in the McKinney Company's plant. At 5 o'clock the flames were under control.

While running to the fire a hose-reel collided with a street car, and Finley Bruce, the driver, sustained three broken ribs.

As night fell the firemen worked in total darkness as the electric wires are all down. It is claimed that all the companies were fully insured.

The Prince of Wales has engaged Ted Sloan, the American jockey, to ride for him next season.

RIOTING IN PRAGUE.

RENEWAL OF DISTURBANCES IN THE GERMAN QUARTER.

Houses and Shops Plundered—Troops Cleared the Streets—Many People Injured and a Number of Arrests Made.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PRAGUE, BOHEMIA, December 1.—There was a renewal of the rioting here last evening. The windows of the German theatre, German schools, restaurants, residences and newspaper offices were broken. The troops cleared the streets. Many persons were injured and a number of arrests were made. During the afternoon the riots increased. The synagogue windows were smashed as well as the windows of the houses of Jews displaying German trade signs in several streets of the Jewish quarter.

Since 6 o'clock this evening the streets have been held by twelve battalions of infantry and a squadron of hussars. All traffic is suspended and the shops and business houses are closed.

In spite of the military, a large Czech mob made a descent during the evening upon the German quarter and plundered houses and shops in several streets. The furniture of a well known German cafe was piled up in the street and set on fire. When a detachment of troops approached to disperse the rioters the soldiers were greeted with a shower of stones, broken glass and other missiles. The officer in command ordered his troops to prepare to fire, but at the urgent request of a police official the order was not carried into effect.

Shortly after 9 o'clock a mob attempted to storm a cartridge factory at Zizkow, a suburb of Prague, on the other side of the Moldau. The troops stationed at the factory poured a volley into the crowd. It is known that at least two persons were killed outright and it is feared that others were killed or wounded. The same body of rioters set fire to a house at Zizkow, but the flames were soon quenched. In various other parts of the city and the suburbs windows were smashed and the German sign boards demolished. It is said that the mob was incited by articles in the Czech newspapers and by a false report that the German students had organized an attack upon the Czech National Theatre.

At a late hour threatening crowds made repeated rushes and attempts to storm the German newspaper offices, but by 11 o'clock the town was quiet and the troops had been withdrawn except patrols at threatened points.

In Smichow, the southwest suburb of Prague and a thickly populated industrial quarter at a late hour in the evening, a riotous mob attacked and plundered the German national school. The rioters fired shots at the police detachment which arrived on the scene to disperse them; whereupon the commanding officer, acting with great promptitude, drew his revolver and fired at one of the ring-leaders, the bullet piercing his arm. He then arrested the man, and the result of this energetic action was the dispersion of the mob without much further difficulty.

The German gymnasium in the Altstaedter Ring, in the center of the city, was plundered by a mob which was finally dispersed by a combined charge of soldiers and police.

As a result of the riots and disorders of the last twenty-four hours the authorities have proclaimed the city under martial law. The chief of police, who is a Czech, was discovered encouraging the rioters, and has been suspended from office. It is now known that the number of injured Germans reaches 300. They are being cared for at the various hospitals.

The disturbances to-day have amounted almost to a rebellion. Thousands of Czech miners streamed into Prague to-night from the surrounding villages to assist the rioters. The scientific instruments in the German University and High School have been destroyed and valuable archives preserved for a long time at the Kinsky palace, the largest in the Altstadt, have been burned.

The constant cry of the rioters was, "Down with the Germans; down with the Jews."

Ladies venturing on the streets were obliged to wear the Slav tri-color in order to avoid being attacked. German signboards are being hastily removed by their owners and replaced with Czech inscriptions. Nobody dares to utter a word in German.

The Kinsky palace was plundered of its furniture, which was thrown through the windows, heaped in the street and set on fire, the mob preventing the fire brigades from approaching.

VIENNA, December 1.—The prospects for the new ministry are ominous. The assignment of portfolios has been received on all sides with frigid reserve, and although the dismissal of Count Badeni has allayed the spirit of rebellion in Vienna and the German towns, anarchy has broken out in the Slav and Czechish towns and provinces.

It looks as though Baron Gautsch would have as great difficulties to face in the demands of the Czechs and Socialists as Count Badeni had.

Seeing the success that mob influence has had in Vienna in bringing about the downfall of Count Badeni, the Czechs are trying by the same influence to bring pressure to bear upon the new cabinet.

The parliamentary situation is unchanged and hopeless. Baron Gautsch has conferred with the leaders of the majority and the leaders of the minority, but so far both parties appear irreconcilable.

GERMANY'S DEMANDS.

An Apology as Well as Indemnity Required of Hayti.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

WASHINGTON, December 1.—The exact nature of Germany's demands on Hayti became known for the first time to day. The details came by way of steamer from Port au Prince, which arrived at New York yesterday, and show the demands to be as follows:

"First—An indemnity of twenty thousand American dollars for Emil Luederes; second, the promise that Mr. Lueders may return to Hayti and there sojourn without danger of any kind; third, a letter to my Government in which you will express apology for the proceedings towards the German government in the whole transaction; fourth, that the president of Hayti shall graciously receive the German charge d'affaires at Port au Prince."

Hayti, in turn, demands to know on what grounds an apology is asked, alleging gross disrespect on the part of the German charge d'affaires to the Haytian president. The money indemnity is regarded by Hayti as the least important feature of the affair.

The dry goods market shows signs of an increase in interest in some quarters although the tone of the market shows no advance of moment. The reductions in staple calicoes, on the part of Merrimacs and Americans has been followed by a reduction of Algonquin indigo prints, and there is a stimulation of interest in nearly all lines of fancy cottons, printed and woollen goods. This is not, however, true of staple cottons in any grade, nor print cloths.

CUBAN WAR NEWS.

Insurgents Attack the Town of Guisa—Fifty of the Garrison Killed and Wounded—Reports of Other Engagements.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

HAVANA, December 1.—Announcement was issued from the Spanish headquarters in the palace to day, saying that a force of insurgents recently attacked Guisa, a town situated about fifteen miles from Bayamo, in the province of Santiago de Cuba. It was further announced that a Spanish column has left Manzanillo to engage the insurgents at Guisa.

Another announcement from the palace describes a movement of Spanish troops under General Berual, who was accompanied by Senor Jose Canalejas, the former Spanish cabinet minister and special commissioner, who is visiting Cuba to gather material for a report on the condition of the island, in behalf of the Spanish Government; and General Hernandez Valazques. The Spanish force consisted of 2,800 men, accompanied by two field guns. The column, under the personal command of General Berual, engaged an insurgent force, according to the report, on the heights of Romaro Madama, and Palades, province of Pinar del Rio, and later was more severely engaged with the insurgents at La Cuchille de Los Caimitos, where the Spaniards are said to have captured and destroyed the fortified camp of the insurgent General Ducassi.

General Hernandez, commanding the second column, the report continues, captured and destroyed an insurgent camp at Aranjuez, and also destroyed five hundred huts and several other insurgent camps in the immediate vicinity of Aranjuez.

As a result of these movements, continues the official statements, the insurgents retreated in a thoroughly demoralized condition after suffering the loss of many men. The Spanish columns lost a major and twelve soldiers killed and had one captain and twenty-nine soldiers wounded.

According to the latest advices from the scene of the engagement, the Spanish cavalry was continuing the pursuit of the enemy.

The garrison at Guisa is reported to have lost fifty killed and wounded.

GUILDENSUPPE MURDER.

Mrs. Nack Will be Arraigned Next Week—It is Expected She Will Plead Guilty of Manslaughter.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, December 1.—Martin Thorn, who last evening heard the verdict of the jury which will send him to the electric chair to expiate the murder of William Guldensuppe, passed a quiet night in his cell at the Queens county jail.

When Sheriff Doht went to see Thorn this morning the condemned prisoner said he had no appetite for breakfast, but he felt that a big load was off his mind. Thorn did not talk as if he had any hope of getting a new trial. He supposed, he said, he would have to make up his mind to meet the worst.

Police Captain Methven, of Long Island City, said to-day: "There are some discrepancies in the published report of Thorn's confession, but the main facts remain unchanged. Thorn made part of the confession to me and part to Sheriff Daot. I can truthfully say that Thorn confessed that he killed Guldensuppe."

Lawyer Howe to-day denied in strong terms the statement that Thorn, after his confession yesterday, confessed to the killing and dismemberment of Guldensuppe. Mr. Howe reiterated his belief that the Court of Appeals would reverse the verdict.

Mrs. Nack spent a restless night, being evidently much affected by the conviction of Thorn. When she heard of the verdict she wept, and expressed sorrow for her former lover, although she says her conscience is relieved. Mrs. Nack is in a highly nervous condition, and is now very anxious about her own case. District Attorney Youngs has not announced just what he purposes doing in the case of Mrs. Nack, but says he will take no action until after Thorn is sentenced.

It is understood that Mrs. Nack will be arraigned in court next week when her counsel, Emanuel Friend, will in her behalf enter a plea of guilty of manslaughter in the first degree, and that the district attorney will accept the plea. In doing this Mr. Youngs would be recognizing Mrs. Nack's action in turning State's evidence at the first trial. Mrs. Nack may be sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment.

M. E. CHURCH SOUTH.

North Carolina Conference in Session at Raleigh—Dr. Cunninggim Re-elected Secretary—Yesterday's Proceedings.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RALEIGH, N. C., December 1.—The North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, opened here at 9 30 a. m. with the celebration of the Lord's supper, administered by the Bishop, assisted by leading divines.

Reports from the connectional officers were read and the various committees appointed.

Rev. W. L. Cunninggim was re-elected secretary.

Rev. W. C Norman was elected trustee of the Conference to succeed the late Dr. Black.

Bishop Halsey, of the Colored Methodist Church, made an appeal for Paine Institute, and $267 67 was raised in small contributions. Col. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, added $1 000 to the collection.

The morning session was spent chiefly in answering the twentieth question: 'Are the preachers blameless in their lives and conversation?" The character of all the preachers in the Raleigh district passed.

The feature of the night service was an address of an hour's length by Mrs. Hargrove, wife of the presiding Bishop. Her subject was, "Parsonage and Home Mission Work." Mrs. Hargrove spoke entertainingly, giving as she proceeded many figures and a number of touching incidents in her experience.

Mrs. Hargrove will speak to morrow to women only.

VIRGINIA'S LEGISLATURE.

Both Houses Met and Organized—Governor's Message Received and Read.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RICHMOND, VA, December 1.—The Virginia General Assembly met to-day at noon, and each House elected the officers nominated by the Democratic caucuses held last night. The present session will elect a successor to Hon. John W. Daniel in the United States Senate; will elect the treasurer; the two auditors; superintendent of public instruction; superintendent of public printing; superintendent of the penitentiary; register of the land office, and railroad commissioner. These elections will be caucussed on this week. The Legislature will also elect county judges.

The Governor's message recommends that if necessary, the appropriations to State institutions of higher learning be reduced, in order to increase the appropriations to the State soldiers' home and for pensions. It discusses the subject of lynchings, and urges that a heavy pecuniary penalty be imposed on each caunty and city in which a lynching occurs. Also, that there be only one penalty for rape, and that death. It recommends radical changes in the oyster laws, so as to increase the revenues, and advocates material changes in the election law.

UNITED STATES WARSHIPS.

The North Atlantic Squadron Will Rendezvous in the Gulf of Mexico This Winter.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 1.—The North Atlantic squadron will enter the Gulf of Mexico this winter and spend several months off the coast of Florida. This will be the first time in about three years that the squadron has been in the Gulf, the last cruise having been made under the command of Rear Admiral Meade. It was the intention shortly after his retirement to send the squadron to the Venezuelan coast for the customary winter drills, but this cruise was abandoned on account of friction that had been caused between the United States and Great Britain over the Venezuelan boundary question, it being feared the presence of our warships in the neighborhood of the scene of dispute would be misconstrued into a hostile purpose. Later on and after the Venezuelan matter had dropped into the background, the situation as to Cuba was regarded by the administration as being such as to make it imprudent to allow a squadron to absent itself from our unprotected shores. Moreover, the approach of the ships to Cuba would have been interpreted by the insurgents as a sign of the intention of the United States Government to interfere in their behalf. All of these reasons have now ceased to be of force.

It has been arranged that the harbor of Key West shall form the readezvous of the vessels. The conditions there, it is said, at the department, are very favorable. The exact date for the assembling of the ships there has not yet been fixed.

The torpedo boat flotilla probably will be in the neighborhood of Key West about the time the squadron is in the harbor and some interesting drills and mock-attacks may be expected.

GOVERNMENT ARMOR PLANT.

Cost Estimated at $3,750,000—No Recommendation as to Location.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 1.—The naval board appointed by authority of Congress to ascertain the cost of an armor plant, made its report through Commodore Howell to Secretary Long to-day. The report makes a voluminous document, treating every detail of the process of armor-making essential to a correct apprehension of the cost of the plant and of the product. It is also accompanied by elaborate plans for the plant, which have been verified by expert Fritz. The cost of a plant suitable for the making of naval armor at the rate of about 6,000 tons per annum, which is fully equal to the capacity of both of the existing private plants, is set down as about three and three-quarter million dollars. No recommendation is made as to the location of the plant, but the board has accumulated much information as to the merits of various eligible locations, which may be had by Congress if called for by it.

Secretary Long will now proceed immediately to take the next step necessary to carry out the wishes of Congress, namely: Invite proposals by advertisement for building such a plant as that designed for the use of the Government.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

December Statement—Issued from the Treasury Department

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 1.—The December statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business November 30th, 1897, the public debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,809 226 486, a decrease since October 30th of $11,888,195. This decrease is accounted for by an increase in the cash due to the deposit of an installment of the proceeds of the sale of the government's interest in the Union Pacific railroad.

But for this transaction the cash in the treasury would have been $771,450 less than last month.

THE LUETGERT TRIAL.

Counsel Wrangling—No Additional Jurors Secured.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, December 1.—The examination of talesmen in the Luetgert case to day was marked by many conflicts between Assistant State's Attorney McEwen and Attorney Harmon, counsel for the defence. Judge Gary was required to interfere frequently. Attorney Harmon, in catechising veniremen, took frequent occasion to attack the reliability of police testimony.

At the close of the day no additional jurors had been secured, but four men had been accepted by the defence and will be examined by the State to-morrow.

AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS

BY THE STATE DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

All White Electors Who Intend to Vote With the Party in the Next Election and Who Desire White Supremacy and Honest Government in North Carolina Invited to Participate in All Primaries.

[Special Star Correspondence.

RALEIGH, N. C., December 1.

The Democratic Executive Committee did not complete its work until early this morning, after the close of the telegraph office.

The following resolution introduced by Mr. H. L. Stevens was unanimously adopted:

"That all white electors who intend to vote with us in the next election, and who desire the re-establishment of Anglo-Saxon supremacy and honest government in North Carolina, are cordially invited to participate in all of our primaries."

The following address, prepared by Mr. Francis D. Winston, of Bertie, was unanimously endorsed:

THE ADDRESS.

"The representatives of the Democratic party in North Carolina congratulate the Democrats of her sister States, who with a firm stand for the principles embodied in the Chicago platform, have won splendid victories for the people.

"In rejoicing at the success of the Democratic party in the late elections we remind the people that Democratic majorities were largest, and Republican majorities were smallest in those States where that platform was the issue. It is a significant fact that Democracy was defeated in the States where local concerns were allowed to overshadow the principles of the party. Democracy is for all the people. The recent utterances of the people are plain and decided. They have expressed their faith in bimetallism, their disgust and disapproval of Republican creeds and practices, and, above all, their hatred of the tyrannous gold standard. They show that they will no longer submit to the robbery of trusts, the domination of bosses and the oppression of the money power. The condemnation of the hypocrisy and falsehood of the Republican party is crushing.

"It is equally pronounced, whether we hear it, loud and free, in the wheat fields of Ohio and Iowa, or struggling for utterance in the wealth congested center of 'Greater New York,' where the candidate for mayor received 80 000 plurality—a candidate whose only campaign utterance was 'I am a Democrat,' who was heart and soul for the Chicago platform, and the candidates who stood on it.

"No less significant is the fact that the people of the State of New York have elected by 70,000 majority as Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals a statesman, who sought support by announcing that he had voted for Hon. Wm. J. Bryan last year.'

"And with this glorious news of Democratic success we rejoice that 'sham international bimetallism' has been exposed. There is now no room for Republican dodging.

"We affirm our belief in the principles of the Chicago and State platforms of the Democratic party, as adopted in their entirety, and we will still support those principles until they are written in our laws.

"We would be untrue to the firm and loyal allegiance the Democrats of North Carolina bear to our greatest leader, Hon. William J. Bryan, if we failed to express our confidence in his honor and integrity, and in his devotion of head and heart to the welfare of all the people. We emphasize the fact that our greatest victory was won in the States of Ohio and Kentucky, where he personally appealed to the people.

"We view with alarm the depressed condition of trade and the low prices of products raised by our people, but we remind those who heard Republican orators in 1896 predict dire disaster if the Democrats were elected, that McKinley is President of these United States and that both branches of Congress are Republican. The people are swift to draw the proper conclusions.

"We thank all the patriotic citizens who joined with us last year in carrying the State for our Presidential candidates, and we invite to the future councils of the Democratic party—the party of the people—all men who believe in its principles, and who desire its supremacy and will assist in carrying out its policy.

"In less than one year opportunity will be given the voters to express a firm adherence to those principles. We regret that the ballot box was not this year opened to all North Carolinians. North Carolina is now accidentally Republican. We do not believe that any number of intelligent and virtuous men expected or hoped for the present rule in this State. We are sure all good men are eager for a change. We have fallen on evil days in North Carolina. They recall the days of revolution. They demonstrate the truth that no Southern State can be governed with honor and decency by the Republican party. Too large a number of its voters are ignorant for the masses to control, and too large a number of the leaders are venal and corrupt to give North Carolina good government.

"We look with horror upon the evils wrought by a combination of Republicans and the corrupt work of the leaders of the Populist party by means of which our legislation has become a farce. Many of our officeholders become corrupt and criminal, and ignorance and vice raised above intelligence and virtue. We denounce the efforts of this combination to place the insane of the State at the mercy of incompetent, vicious and lustful men, and we condemn the changes wrought in our laws whereby ignorant and impure men have been placed in control of schools, courts, prisons and asylums. These are the inevitable consequences of Republican rule. The Democratic party promises the people on its return to power to correct all these abuses. It will guarantee every citizen his rights, but it demands that virtue and intelligence shall rule the State. It will restore to the white women of the State the security they felt under the twenty years of Democracy inaugurated by the immortal Vance. To the accomplishment of these ends let every patriot rally to the white man's party. To your tents, oh Israel!

CLEMENT MANLY,
Chairman State Dem Ex. Com.
JNO. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y.

Mr. H. B. Varner was elected a member of the committee in place of H. M. Pinnix, deceased.

Chairman Clement Manly and Secretary John W. Thompson were tendered a rising vote of thanks for the able management of affairs in the last campaign.

COAL TRUST FORMED.

A Stupendous Scheme of Pittsburg Operators.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PITTSBURG, PA., December 1.—The biggest combination of river coal interests ever attempted promises to be effected before the new year. It has been talked of for years, but has at last come to a focus.

There is a silent dissension in the ranks, but it is not considered to be sufficient to block the way of a speedy consolidation. The scheme, which is stupendous in nature, proposes the organization of one company with a capitalization of $11,000,000. It is to be a huge trust, controlling the river coal interests from Lock No. 5, on the Monongahela river, to New Orleans.

The primary object of the combination is to reduce expenses in both mining and shipping. The Pittsburg operators hope by this means to successfully compete with the Kanawa river product.
